Even if it does, the Senate will remain, and the American Senate, unlike the British House of Lords, is really a co-ordinate branch of the government, and fully determined to assert its rights and dignity as such.

The recuperative energy of the Democratic party is a something which excites the envy and admiration of the various coalitions which have been formed against it .-In one important particular, at least, it differs from all other parties or political organizations that have arisen on or near the margin of the Mediterraneau, and the in the United States :- It has been defeated, but never most vigorous developments of modern minds have been routed. Its "flag is still there," its name, its principles found in such Southern men as Napoleon Bonaparte, are still there—it is never disbanded, it is never merged, it is never lost. Therefore it is that it rallies from disaster so easily, and is really more formidable, even in defeat, than any antagonistic coalition even in victory.

817,333 Hon. J. Glancy Jones.—It affords us great pleasure to announce that the appointment of Hon. J. Glancy Jones, of Pennsylvania, as minister to Austria, which was voluntarily tendered to him by the Presiden, has been accepted by that gentleman. The faithfulness and ability of his whole course in Congress as a national democrat have been recognised and endorsed by the house, No. 2 GRANITE ROW, Front street, nearly opposite country. As chairman of the Committee of Ways and the old stand of Messrs. Polley & Hart. I shall offer them Means in the House of Representatives—the most important position in that body-he was eminently successful. His persuasive manners and his admitted knowledge of financial questions extended his influence may indicate. among the members of all parties, who placed full reliance on his statements. Should the tariff question be before Congress at the next session, his loss will be severely felt. But his appointment to Austria was New York and elsewhere.
